NATx Terpenes

The terpenes are well known for their structural heterogeneity as well as for their pharmacological relevance.

Two factors that qualify them perfectly as starting points in library generation. Much effort was put into translating relevant core structures into drug-like libraries with a strong emphasis in chemical tractability.

2,366 compounds from our library originating from 13 diverse scaffolds are populating the AnalytiCon terpene like space. All compounds can be cherry picked. Customized sets can be assembled and delivered in your preferred format. All compounds are above 85 percent purity.
